I wrote in great detail and quality about all the requested chapters for the theory section, each with their own examples of code to demonstrate my understanding. For the practical section, I created a point of sale (POS) system encapsulating all requested concepts into one application, as I believed that having an entirely cohesive application covering a multitude of concepts shows better understanding and mastery of object-oriented design, especially with a video breakdown to walk viewers through my code. For that extensive coverage, I believe I should receive full credit for all theory and practical chapters and at least 10 points in the creative section to give me a total of 100 points for this assignment.
